ACCLAIMED RESIDENTIAL ARCHITECT - DAN SATER - CONTINUES PARTNERSHIP WITH MONIERLIFETILE®

IRVINE, Calif. (February 2008) –One of the nation’s most respected architects for the past 25 years, Dan F. Sater II, AIBD, CPBD, is widely known for crafting beautiful, durable and sustainable homes. While the style of his luxury homes may vary, Sater continues to specify MonierLifetile® for all of his home designs complemented by a tile roof.

“The worth of MonierLifetile’s concrete roof tiles is greater than just their aesthetic beauty. Their tile roofing systems provide sustainable, long lasting function and value to a home,” says Sater, president and CEO of Sater Companies. “I recently designed the NAHB’s New American Home project for the International Builders Show, and chose to incorporate MonierLifetile’s Madera tile to give it an authentic wood shake look. And the durability, performance and energy efficiency fit the sustainability and green building goals we had to achieve.”

A certified professional building designer, Sater is a member of the American Institute of Building Design (AIBD) and a Certified Public Building Designer (CPBD). He is renown in architectural circles for his flowing interiors that interact fluidly with the adjoining and expansive outdoor spaces.

Sater’s preference for MonierLifetile, ventures beyond his exclusive custom home designs. Living in Bonita Springs, Florida, Sater selected a MonierLifetile roof for his own home in order to protect it during the potentially harsh hurricane seasons. MonierLifetile’s roof tiles and components are put through sophisticated weather testing, and are designed to perform in extreme climates, as well as resistant to gale force winds.

“Dan’s designs are a demonstration of his passion and ability to combine unmatched form with function” states Cheryl Inbody, marketing and communications manager for MonierLifetile. “We are thrilled to continue our long standing relationship with him.”
